SONG

BY

DOLLIE RADFORD

BECAUSE your treasure is near
To the touch of your hand,
And fresh and flowing and clear
Your deep well of delight,
The place is bared to the sky
Where my treasure should stand,
The rain of fountains is dry,
That was sweet to my sight.

Because your day is ablaze
With the flowers that are blown,
And glad for length of the ways
That are never to part,
I watch and tremble for grief
In the shadow alone,
And branch and blossom and leaf
Bring the pain to my heart.

Because the word is so kind
That is breathed in your ear,
And sweet the thoughts you unbind
In your rapture of peace,
My words are laggard and late
With the thoughts that are dear,
My thoughts that falter and wait
For their joy of release.
